the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation, 2000). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in the general population, and the incidence of mental health problems has increased in the prison population.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of prisoners. The Department of Health (2000) has published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners. The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 600 million to 800 million (FAO 1996).

There are a number of reasons why the world's population is becoming more undernourished. One of the main reasons is that the world's population is growing very rapidly. In 1990, there were 5.3 billion people in the world, and by 2000, there will be 6.1 billion. This means that there are more people in the world than ever before, and this is putting a lot of pressure on the world's food supply.

Another reason why the world's population is becoming more undernourished is that the world's food supply is not growing fast enough to keep up with the demand. This is because the world's food supply is based on a few crops, such as wheat, rice, and corn, and these crops are not growing fast enough to keep up with the demand.

A third reason why the world's population is becoming more undernourished is that the world's food supply is not distributed evenly. This means that some people have a lot of food, while others have very little. This is because the world's food supply is controlled by a few large countries, and these countries are not sharing the food with the rest of the world.

There are a number of things that can be done to help solve the problem of world hunger. One of the most important things is to increase the world's food supply. This can be done by growing more crops, such as wheat, rice, and corn, and by using better farming techniques.

Another important thing is to distribute the world's food supply more evenly. This can be done by giving food to the people who need it most, and by making sure that everyone has access to food.

There are a number of other things that can be done to help solve the problem of world hunger. These include improving the world's food supply, distributing the world's food supply more evenly, and making sure that everyone has access to food.

The world's population is becoming more undernourished, and this is a serious problem. There are a number of things that can be done to help solve the problem of world hunger, and it is important that we do these things now.
