An aerial photograph of a coastal region, likely in the Czech Republic, showing a large body of water (the sea) and a prominent green forested area. A red boundary line is drawn across the map, separating the forested area from the sea. The forested area is irregularly shaped and contains some internal lines. The sea is a light blue-grey color. The map is overlaid with a grid of black lines, possibly representing property boundaries or administrative divisions. There are some text labels in the map, including 'Záhrada' (Garden) and 'Záhrada' (Garden) in red, and 'Záhrada' (Garden) in black. The map is oriented with the sea on the left and the land on the right.
